March 2022

Director's Message

March is National Women's History Month and the perfect time to recognize Women Veterans who have played an important role in our nation's history. Not only did they set the stage for future generations who wanted to serve their country, like me, but proved that women could be as resilient and inspiring as men in times of conflict.

I'm inspired by the contributions these women have made. We owe them and others like them a world of gratitude.

Here's a look in this newsletter at just a few of these women who voluntarily put themselves in harm's way -- many suffering life-altering disabilities and illnesses or giving the ultimate sacrifice -- to protect our way of life.

NPRC Update

Local health conditions in the St. Louis area have improved and the NPRC resumed normal operations on March 7, 2022.

While the National Personnel Records Center has reopened for normal operations, the federal record center research room remains closed.

The operating status of the public research room may be found at www.archives.gov/st-louis.

National Vietnam War Veterans Day March 29

We honor, remember and welcome home the men and women for their sacrifices. National Vietnam War Veterans Day came about as the result of the passage of the Vietnam War Veterans Recognition Act that was signed into law by President Trump in 2017. Hanoi also released the last prisoners of war that were being held in North Vietnam on March 29, 1973.

Along with establishing a specific day to acknowledge these Veterans, there has been a movement across the country to give Vietnam Veterans the Welcome Home they never received 49 years ago. Each of these Veterans sacrificed something in Southeast Asia many decades ago. Many sacrificed everything while over there or after they returned home. They fought the war. And they faced contempt when they arrived home, living it for decades since.

It is long overdue that those men and women are given the Welcome Home and the gratitude they deserve. THANK YOU!! WELCOME HOME!!!

Women Veterans To Honor

Pvt. Cathay Williams, aka William Cathay (1844–1892)

Private Williams served post-Civil War. She was born a slave and is the first known African American woman who served in the United States Army.

Documents show Williams served alongside men in her unit-without being recognized as a woman.

1st Lieutenant Ashly White Stumpf (1987-2011)

She served in Afghanistan. Lt. White Stumpf was assigned to a National Guard unit from Goldsboro, NC, and served as a member of a cultural support team (CST) attached to a joint special operations task force in Afghanistan.

As part of a CST, she took on a new role for women in the military, involving special units of female Army soldiers meant to build relationships with Afghan citizens.

She was killed during combat operations in October 2011, when the assault force she was supporting triggered an improvised explosive device.

Col. Ruby Bradley (1907–2002)

She served in World War II and the Korean War. She joined the U.S. Army Nurse Corps as a surgical nurse in 1934. In 1941, she was taken captive by Japanese forces while serving in the Philippines.

She and fellow imprisoned nurses continued to care for their fellow prisoners, earning them the nickname “angels in fatigues.”

In February 1945, U.S. troops stormed the gates of the Japanese camp and liberated Bradley and her fellow prisoners, where she had been held captive for three years.

Bradley continued serving in the Army Nurse Corps after her release and then in the Korean War. She dedicated 30 years to the military, becoming only the third woman in U.S. history to be promoted to the rank of Colonel.
